Religion and World Views Long Term Plan – Curriculum Map

The Religion and World Views curriculum at Kingswood Parks matches the breadth and ambition of the locally agreed syllabus. The key substantive and disciplinary knowledge has been mapped out so teachers know precisely what to teach and when, can demonstrate a logical progression and can cite how new knowledge and skills build upon what has been taught before. Religion and World Views vocabulary is mapped out so that teachers know precisely what to teach and when. This is in a logical progression so that vocabulary development builds over time. End points have been defined as curricular goals which pupils will work towards. These end points are progressive and enable pupils to apply their knowledge and skills in an open-ended, measurable way which teachers can then assess against. Curriculum plans are adapted to meet the needs of SEND pupils as well as providing pupils with opportunities to deepen their understanding through challenging outcomes which are not limiting. Provision for SEND pupils is personalised for individuals and strategies used will be indicated in planning. Religions and World Views have been chosen to reflect the groups within the school community. In the EYFS, although there is a structure, following the locally agreed syllabus, there will be further opportunities to learn through the children's own experiences.
